Transforming health care for humanity

What's on your mind?

A quick-fire Q&A with our CEO, Bianca Pietralla

Q. Looking back to 2022, what were your biggest highlights?

A: There are so many to list, but one that really resonated with me last year was the outcome of the Cuddle Beds campaign. What started as a simple, meaningful idea from a palliative care nursing caregiver on the frontline at one of our WA hospitals, evolved into getting these special beds into 12 St John of God Hospitals across Victoria and Western Australia, with the enduring support of our community. This initiative really speaks to our values at St John of God Health Care, and how we emphasise compassionate care during some of the most difficult times for patients and their loved ones.

I was also really thrilled to launch our inaugural St John of God Foundation Research Grants to fund an early career researcher as well as seed funding for two projects. Medical research is so important in leading to new discoveries and ensuring patients receive the best care possible.

Chances are, if you have a treatment today that wasn't available ten years ago, someone with the knowledge and skills had the foresight to research a question like, "Will treatment A have better outcomes than treatment B?"

That idea of being able to explore new frontiers that have potentially life-changing impacts in health care really excites me. Similarly, the support for researchers to build capacity for systemic change, and to retain this talent in our communities is critical.

Q. What's on the horizon for St John of God Foundation in 2023?

A. As always, there is a lot happening!

We've recently welcomed new members to the Foundation Board – Bryan Pyne and Tina Chinery, and I'm excited to work closely with them, and our existing board members, to ensure maximum impact for the communities we serve.

We are also embarking on a new strategic plan to maximise our impact and, in the meantime, will continue to focus on funding areas of unmet need in advancing personalised patient treatments and leading medical research.

Q. What do you think are the biggest challenges facing the health care sector right now?

A. Without a doubt, the biggest challenge currently facing health care providers is staffing shortages on a global scale. Added to this, we are an ageing population and we are living longer, so I think another challenge post-pandemic is how we 'live well' as a society.

More than one in five Australians over the age of 65 reported suffering two or more long term health conditions in the 2021 Census. If we can do more as a sector to prevent, treat and cure chronic disease, and to provide equitable and inclusive services to those most at risk or disadvantaged, we will continue to improve health outcomes and health equity.

Q. Could you tell us one thing you love about your job?

A. If I had to pick just one thing, I'd say the people! I consider myself very blessed to be able to call my team and all the amazing caregivers in our hospitals and services my colleagues, and I love working with our donors, corporate partners and community members. We're all united with the same goal - to make a difference.

You have brought hope, joy and comfort to St John of God patients and caregivers across Australia

Thank you for helping to make wishes come true

Last Christmas we asked for your help to honour the final wishes of patients in Palliative Care through our Christmas Wish Appeal.

Our ability to create special memories from time spent with our loved ones is something to be cherished. It is one of the qualities that makes us human. And when someone is coming to the end of their life, these moments become even more precious.

We are extraordinarily grateful to let you know that thanks to the response from our compassionate supporters, over $28,000 has been raised to help fulfil the final wishes of patients in Palliative Care.

"Your support will make a difference and help to create treasured memories for our patients, their families and my own team. Thank you so much for your kindness."
- Dr Scott Lee, Director and Head of Hospice and Palliative Care Services

Thank you also to everyone who sent us a message of hope for patients and caregivers – your kind words helped to bring much needed Christmas spirit to hospitals across Australia.

Why I Give

We are so very fortunate to have kind and compassionate donors who care deeply about giving back to their communities, and love to hear the stories behind what inspires them to give.

We asked Ashby Farrell, donor and owner of Whitearch, to share his story.

For entrepreneur Ashby Farrell, the definition of success is being able to help others. After starting his own real estate business Whitearch, Ashby found he had the capacity to give back to his community in a way he hadn't before.

"When I started Whitearch, I knew I wanted the business to have a strong social conscience."

And so, in 2022 Ashby announced that Whitearch would donate 3.5% of every commission to St John of God Foundation's Gifts of Hope program, which provides direct financial support for people struggling with the cost of cancer treatment.

Ashby felt especially drawn to Gifts of Hope because in his professional life he has seen first-hand the financial impact that a cancer diagnosis can have on families.

"I often see people that are distressed and trying to sell their home because of the cost of their cancer treatment, or they're struggling to buy a house because of the financial burden of their cancer treatment," says Ashby.

"Research and trying to find a cure is important, but the immediate financial pain that people go through, in order to receive life-saving cancer treatment, can be immense."

"To know that Gifts of Hope will financially help some patients and their families, when they need it most, is something I am very proud to be part of".

Born at St John of God Subiaco Hospital and raised in Perth, Ashby has deep roots in his local community - especially since opening his own business in December of 2021. As a young man, he was actively involved in community sports, coaching and volunteering for local clubs, which reinforced for him the importance of being part of something bigger.

For Ashby, cancer is a cause close to his heart.

"Sadly I think everyone has been affected by cancer in some way," says Ashby.

"I've got close friends, and parents of close friends, who have been directly affected by a cancer diagnosis and I see the toll it takes on not only the person who has been diagnosed but their loved ones as well."

"That's why I believe it's important to give back. It can make such a difference to people's lives when they need it most."

Thanks to kind people like Ashby and businesses like Whitearch, Gifts of Hope are making an immediate difference for people struggling with the financial stresses of cancer. You can find out more at www.sjogfoundation.org.au/hope.

“What comes next?”

New Subiaco clinic helps patients find wellness after breast cancer

Breast cancer is the second most commonly diagnosed cancer in Australia, affecting both men and women. Fortunately though, the survival rate for breast cancer has greatly improved in the past few decades - from 76% in 1989, to 93% for women and 86% for men today.

With this increase in survivorship, comes an increased need for continued support for people who have finished their treatment and recovered from their cancer.

St John of God Subiaco Hospital Breast Care Nurse, Gay Refeld, says that she often sees patients struggle emotionally whilst coping with their diagnosis and treatment, and beyond.

“Once their active treatment is completed (surgery, chemotherapy and radiotherapy), there is a perception that life will return to normal,” says Gay.

“However, life after breast cancer is a ‘new’ normal.”

After finishing treatment, survivors can experience feelings of anxiety, worry about cancer returning, impacts on relationships, and fatigue. In addition, survivors may have ongoing financial stresses relating to loss of income due to inability to work during treatment, gap payments and ongoing medical costs such as medication and physiotherapy.

To help meet the needs of survivors, a new clinic has been established at St John of God Subiaco Hospital: The Wellness After Breast Cancer Clinic. The Clinic offers a holistic consult, where patients have an opportunity to discuss their physical and psychological symptoms with a dedicated Breast Care Nurse. It also serves to normalise patients’ feelings, address ongoing issues, and to offer advice and referrals to relevant services. The consult is documented in an individualised Wellness Plan, and then provided to the patient and health professionals involved in their care.

▼ The words of patients who have received care at the Wellness After Breast Cancer Clinic:

“I found this appointment to be vital to my moving on to a normal life. It was closure in a way.

By summarising the events of the past year, the Breast Care Nurse enabled me to understand where I am and what I have to do to continue to move forward.”

“I felt like I could move on and open the door to the new normal with more enthusiasm and support!”

“This is an essential part of the after care service... it ties up loose ends or gives you time to address issues you didn’t feel were important at the time of treatment. Like with myself, the aftercare was required because it addressed a new set of health issues that I had left unattended, because I felt like I’d been through enough with my breast cancer treatment.”

From Gay’s perspective, the Clinic can be as rewarding for caregivers as it is for their patients.

“It’s a privilege having the opportunity to spend quality time with patients, to reflect on their breast cancer diagnosis and address all issues experienced following their treatment. To see the relief on their faces and to validate that what they are experiencing is normal is very gratifying,” says Gay.

“Knowing that the clinic is making a difference in the quality of their lives and assisting them to move forward is very rewarding. My only wish is that I had the opportunity to see more patients in this setting.”

We will continue to keep you updated on our work in support of breast cancer patients and their families. Please contact us on 1800 281 288 if you would like to support this vital area of care.

The Wellness After Breast Cancer Clinic was made possible thanks to support from our wonderful donor community – thank you so much.

Golf day fundraiser a hole-in-one

In November, St John of God Geelong Hospital CEO Stephen Roberts hosted a Golf Day fundraiser, bringing together donors, caregivers, and members of the Geelong community in support of maternity care in the region.

The Golf Day was proudly presented by Lake Imaging and held at the scenic 13th Beach Golf Links, and the event raised vital funds which will be invested back into the community through the redevelopment of the St John of God Geelong Hospital Maternity Unit.

Guests enjoyed glimpses of sunshine, and played 18 holes on the iconic course followed by refreshments and lunch, and had the opportunity to bid on exciting prizes at a live fundraising auction.

"Lake Imaging was delighted to be the Platinum Sponsor of the St John of God Geelong Golf Day in 2022," says Donna Carroll of Lake Imaging.

"As the medical imaging provider located within St John of God Geelong Hospital, together with six other radiology practices within the Geelong region, we share the same patients when it comes to providing a superior medical service. Supporting the Maternity Redevelopment is important as our goal is aligned with St John of God, providing the Geelong community with a high level of expertise, care and compassion to all patients."

St John of God Geelong Hospital has been a leading provider of maternity services in the Greater Geelong region for over 40 years, with experienced, dedicated midwives and obstetricians who have delivered babies for generations of local families.

As the Greater Geelong region - which is now home to over 270,000 people - continues to grow, it is important to ensure local families can access exceptional, compassionate maternity care now and into the future. St John of God Geelong Hospital has committed to the redevelopment of the Hospital's Maternity Unit, to ensure Geelong families can access the very best care and facilities, close to home.

The St John of God Geelong Hospital Maternity Redevelopment is an investment in the health and wellbeing of new babies and their parents, and in the future of Geelong. St John of God Foundation CEO, Bianca Pietralla, says the funds raised will ensure that the Hospital's exceptional level of care can continue to be matched by equally exceptional facilities.

"We are so grateful to the event sponsors, donors and guests for their attendance and support for this special project," says Bianca.

The St John of God Foundation team would be delighted to talk to you about how gifts of all sizes can help bring this project to life and support families in the Geelong community.

Please contact Bec Takle, Philanthropy Manager, on Bec.Takle@sjog.org.au or 0498 464 298 for more details on this exciting project or visit www.sjogfoundation.org.au/donate-geelong.

Thank you, Tim and Harry

Enduring friendship makes a powerful difference in Ballarat community

Harry Maddicks had a long and meaningful connection to his local community. His family arrived in Daylesford during the Gold Rush in the 1850s, and they went on to live and work in the area for three generations.

Harry, a radio enthusiast, established a local shop selling radios and household appliances, and he and his siblings were also actively involved in volunteering in the local community.

Later in life, Harry was sadly diagnosed pancreatic cancer. As he came to the end of his battle with the disease, he had one final wish: he wanted to be able to help people.

Tim Byrne, of Ballarat, was Harry's friend and lawyer for many years, and remembers his old friend very fondly.

Upon Harry's passing, a trust fund was established, with Tim instructed to find a charity that would help the local community, especially people who needed medical attention.

As a young man, before he began his career as a lawyer, Tim had worked as a builder's labourer at St John of God Ballarat Hospital. He spent many long days there doing everything from mixing concrete to scrubbing floors, and he knew the hospital and its staff well.

Tim felt a great deal of gratitude to St John of God Ballarat Hospital for shaping him into the man he is today. He decided that the hospital, which is known for delivering compassionate care and an extensive range of health services, would be the perfect place to bestow Harry's final gift. Tim generously gave a gift of his own in addition to the funds from Harry's trust, to further support health care in the community they both loved so much.

The kindness and compassion of Tim and Harry will make a significant difference for patients at St John of God Ballarat Hospital and the local community for many years to come. We are so grateful for their generosity.

The power of 'thank you'

Two simple words can change the world

At St John of God Health Care, we see the power of thanks in action every day.

From heartfelt interactions between caregivers and patients, through to life-changing donations, every expression of thanks has the power to make a day or even change a life.

For Terry, supporting colorectal cancer research at St John of God Subiaco Hospital was a deeply meaningful way to express his gratitude for the exceptional cancer care he received at the hospital over 22 years ago.

"Cancer has affected me and my family deeply, which is why we are committed to supporting better health outcomes for others; for generations to come," says Terry.

"Research is so important because it is the only way we can get closer to finding answers, to finding a cure."

If you have received exceptional care and want to celebrate a specific caregiver or a significant experience, sharing a personal expression of gratitude or making a donation to support future patients can be a meaningful part of the healing process.

We invite you to learn more about the impact of philanthropy and share your personal story of gratitude at www.sjogfoundation.org.au/gratitude.

"It's so important for us to provide an opportunity for patients and loved ones to honour or thank their caregivers in a way that is truly meaningful to them while supporting better treatment options for future patients," says Tina Chinery, St John of God Subiaco Hospital CEO.

▲ Thanks to generous donor support, the cutting-edge Trident HD system will be available to Murdoch patients

New technology transforming breast cancer surgery

Donor funding helps breast cancer patients to access state-of-the-art equipment at St John of God Murdoch Hospital

Thanks to generous donor support, St John of God Murdoch Hospital surgeons will be able to deliver exceptional, personalised treatment for patients with breast cancer.

Support from our donor community has enabled the purchase of the Trident HD system for intra-operative radiography. The Trident is an advanced, portable intra-operative breast specimen system that allows surgeons to take images of breast tumour specimens in the operating theatre, in real time, and determine whether a clean margin between cancerous tumours and healthy tissue has been achieved.

"The Trident HD system is a breakthrough in breast specimen imaging technology. It is the only specimen radiograph on the market to use the same detector technology used in 3 dimension mammography systems to generate crisp, clear, high-resolution images, helping to streamline workflows and reduce recalls while decreasing procedure times," says Dr Saud Hamza, Breast Surgeon at St John of God Murdoch Hospital.

"It features an ergonomic design that makes it easy to manoeuvre in a crowded operating theatre and it does have an intuitive touchscreen interface and wireless integration supports, making it the most advanced specimen radiograph in the market."

The impact of this ground-breaking technology will be profoundly felt by patients and their families. By shortening the time of each surgery and reducing patients' time in the operating theatre and under anaesthesia, this technology has the potential to greatly improve patients' wellbeing. By helping patients to feel more confident that the cancer has been removed, and eliminating the stress of additional surgery, the Trident can also put patients on the road to recovery sooner.

"This equipment will enable St John of God Murdoch Hospital to offer those undergoing breast cancer surgery a more precise surgery, and reduced likelihood of subsequent surgeries," says Ben Edwards, CEO St John of God Murdoch Hospital.

"This innovative state-of-the-art technology creates lower risk for patients because less time is spent in the operating theatre. This reduces potential risks associated with anaesthetic, infection and bleeding."

Our sincere thanks to the Tony Fini Foundation, Frank Tomasi, Gudrun Westerfeld and Galvin Engineering for their kind support for the Trident HD technology at St John of God Murdoch Hospital.

Mary's lasting legacy

Complex spinal surgery made possible through the kindness of one Berwick local

St John of God Berwick Hospital has been a crucial service for people in the local area for over 110 years, and with thanks to kind people in our community, will continue to provide exceptional care for many years to come.

One such person was Mary Helen Seath. Mary was born in Koo Wee Rup, VIC, to Scottish parents in 1930. She had an older brother Jimmy, and the family lived on a dairy farm until the floods of 1937, when they moved to Doveton. Shortly after, Mary's father returned to Scotland, leaving Mary's mother to raise her two children single-handedly. Mary's mother was resourceful, hard-working and scrupulous in her business dealings, and in 1954, they were able to build a family home on a 7.5 acre block in Hallam. This became Mary's home and sanctuary until she died in 2019.

"Mary was a loving and doting daughter and sister, and as a friend, she was kind, generous, and loyal," say Mary's friends, Julianne Vermeend and Dianne Taylor.

"She devoted many years of her life to the care of her aging mother, who was 94 when she died. After that, Mary's greatest joy was her garden.

"Mary and her mother created the garden together, perhaps it's one of the reasons why it provided such solace for her in later years. It was both a beautiful and functional garden, with flowers, bulbs, succulents, shrubs, trees, as well as a thriving vegetable patch and prolifically fruiting trees. Even with debilitating arthritis, Mary would hand pick the fruit and vegetables, stew fruit to give to friends, make jam and eat her home-grown vegetables daily.

"She was a resilient, fiercely independent woman who lived a simple and mostly solitary life, and who was loved and respected by the handful of people she held dear."

Before her passing, Mary's mother had expressed a wish to leave a bequest to the local hospital – which Mary eventually did, in her mother's honour.

"The Berwick and District Bush Nursing Hospital cared for Mary and her family throughout their lives, and Mary was incredibly grateful for the treatment they received over the years. She wanted that legacy to continue for her community, and to honour her mother's wishes," say Julianne and Dianne.

"We know how delighted Mary and her family would be that their generous donation will help so many patients at St John of God Berwick in the future."

◀ The immense kindness of the late Mary Helen Seath (pictured) has allowed her local hospital to invest in ground-breaking new neurosurgery equipment.

▲ Mr David Oehme, Neurosurgeon, St John of God Berwick Hospital

Mary's kind gift has made it possible for St John of God Berwick Hospital to invest in state-of-the-art technology that will enable surgeons to undertake complex spinal surgery.

Mr David Oehme, a neurosurgeon at St John of God Berwick Hospital, says the new equipment means patients can access the very best care closer to home.

"Prior to the purchase of the 3-D Ziehm C-arm, Brainlab Navigation System and Mackey operating table, any patient requiring complex instrumented spine surgery, particularly fusion surgery, was transferred to major inner city hospitals for the surgery," says Mr Oehme.

"Previously patients would spend time in hospital away from family. Now they can have their surgery close to home and their families, and still receive state-of-the art care. Patients can have their consultations, surgery and rehab all locally in Berwick at St John of God."

Mr Oehme also says the equipment has ensured that complex surgeries can be performed more safely and with greater precision.

"This technology allows for greater safety of instrumentation of the spine. Our first surgery was like a dream. The screws were flawless. The patient coped very well and overall the equipment worked perfectly," Mr Oehme says.

"The new equipment brings St John of God Berwick Hospital into line with other major inner city hospitals with having state-of-the-art spinal neuronavigation equipment, and has upskilled our nursing staff who are now proficient in using spinal instrumentation and neuronavigation instruments."

Mr Oehme expressed his gratitude on behalf of patients and their families for the generosity that has allowed the hospital to invest in the cutting-edge equipment.

"It has made a major difference to patients in the wider Berwick community who can now access complex spine surgery safely with state-of-the-art neuronavigation equipment. This has been appreciated already by many patients and their families."

▲ Thanks to the combined kindness of Bunbury caregivers and local Workplace Giving partner Piacentini & Son, people with cancer in the South West can receive direct financial help through a Gift of Hope.

Supporting care closer to home, together

Many of us know someone who has received a cancer diagnosis. However, what is less well known is that some cancer treatments can come with large out-of-pocket costs, making them out of reach for many Australians. This is especially true for people who have been unable to work due to their condition, and for people living in regional and remote areas, who might have to travel away from work and their loved ones.

New medical discoveries can help cancer patients to live longer and to experience less pain or other debilitating symptoms. However, these treatments are not always funded or subsidised through private health insurance or Medicare, leaving patients with large bills to pay.

Through the St John of God Bunbury Hospital Workplace Giving program, local caregivers can choose to support patients in the South West in financial need, with life-changing Gifts of Hope.

A Gift of Hope is a gift of financial support provided to in-need Australians with life-threatening conditions such as cancer. For patients who are struggling to afford the best treatment for their cancer, this gift can really bring hope back to their lives.

With thanks to the support of local business Piacentini & Son, the impact of caregivers' donations will be even greater for the South West community. Piacentini & Son have generously decided to support Gifts of Hope in the South West, as a Workplace Giving partner for St John of God Bunbury Hospital.

"Piacentini & Son is extremely pleased to be able to continue our relationship with the St John of God Foundation through Gifts of Hope," says Alison Piacentini of Piacentini & Son.

"The alignment of our organisation's values and the great work of the Foundation has ensured that we have been able to maintain sustainable relationships and support projects in the South West community."

The combined kindness of Bunbury caregivers and Piacentini & Son will help to bring compassionate care closer to home for the South West community, and provide direct financial support for patients to access life-changing cancer care.

"Through supporting Gifts of Hope we have been able to assist people at often the most vulnerable moment of their lives. Knowing we are able to assist a patient in their time of need is encouraging and it's great to know we have been able to make a difference," says Alison.

We are so grateful to Piacentini & Son for their immense kindness, and to Bunbury caregivers who make a difference each day not only through their exceptional work, but also through Workplace Giving.

A lasting gift for our communities

The gift of good health is something we often take for granted. In the fast paced world we live in, it is almost certain that each and every individual will experience the need for special support at some stage during their life; be that emotional, medical, spiritual, or psychological.

Imagine a world where the very best in personalised, compassionate health care was made possible in our local communities. State-of-the-art surgical robotics available in every hospital, clinical trial discoveries in cancer and other treatments offered closer to home, and leading medical research findings delivered straight from 'bench to bedside' – transforming both individual patient experiences and community health outcomes for our families and loved ones.

Through the compassion and generosity of people like you, we can support vital health care advancements at St John of God Health Care hospitals and services that improve the health of Australians, both today and into the future.

By considering a gift in your Will to St John of God Foundation, you can help to ensure the very best health care is available for people in their time of greatest need, for generations to come.

If you would like to know more about how leaving a gift in your Will can create a life-changing health care legacy for future generations, please call Preema Wong, Director of Philanthropy, on 0427 526 899 for a confidential discussion, or email Preema.Wong@sjog.org.au for more information.
